

Dear Families,

This is your child's Nothing Book. A Nothing Book is a way for your child to communicate with you about their school week. Gone are the days of you asking your child what they did at school and their reply is, "Nothing."

The Nothing Book is a way for us to let you know what we are doing in class. Each week your child will write about what they did in school. They will take their Nothing Book home on the last day of the week. It will be your homework to respond to your child by writing a message back to him/her in this book. The Nothing Book needs to come back to school after the weekend.

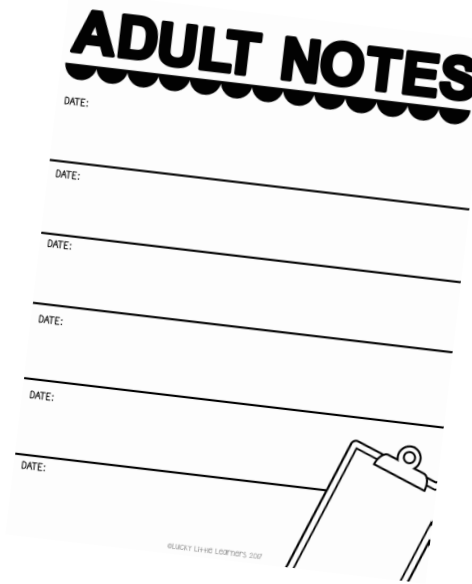

This exercise will help your child build their writing stamina as well as provide him/her with an opportunity to practice using the friendly letter format. Please respect that your child's writing is an unedited piece of writing. The purpose is not to "dictionary spell" every word but instead to provide purposeful writing experiences all while communicating between school and home. At the end of the year, this will be a keepsake for your family to keep to help remember this school year.

Sincerely,
